

Welcome to the May 2008 edition of the McCartney.com newsletter. (created by Martin Nethercutt)

Dear Alan,

This month is veiled in secrecy. As you know, we are always proud to announce any ongoings with the company and the net.work, but there are couple of projects that we just can't talk about until they are ready! Don't you just hate editorial deadlines.

What we are pleased to announce is that after 7 years of dedicated service, Christian Volquartz has been promoted to Vice President of Operations for McCartney Multimedia. Congratulations Christian! here's to you!

So stay tuned for next month's edition, which will exceed all you expectations!

Here's what happened in May 2008:

May's Production Slate

In Development:

Fuzeartz.com Santa Monica, CA - a site for music supervisors and creative professionals for music placement and licensing. It will also soon feature "iZearch" technology - the brainchild of Fuzeartz' Cindy Rosmann and McCartney.

change:healthcare Nashville, TN

McCartney produced the voice overs for the "learn more" sections for this new approach to healthcare.

Check out the website (which is in beta right now)

SoStuppid.com El Segundo, CA - that's right, this will be the Stuppidest site on the whole internet. From one liners to whoopie cushions, this site will have it all. And then some.

New and Improved Media, Marina del Rey, CA - veteran media buyers New and Improved will soon debut a whole new look but have the same good old values and friendly staff to back it up.

Televerde, Phoenix, AZ - event registration software for their slate of A list clients including Computer Associates and Avnet.

Production Transportation, Los Angeles, Chicago and Las Vegas - a new logo, print collateral, web site and corporate video are in the works for this industry leader in "people moving". The video will be shot in Hi-Def in Las Vegas in June at the Convention Center

GA Wright Marketing, Denver, CO - their casino clients continue to utilize the iCommunicationz tool set to blast, track, issue coupons and reward loyal customers.

Coming in June - a Fortune 200 company and a start-up ...we cover it all!

Chamberfest 2008

Going local...

This was McCartney's and iFanz' first exhibition booth at the local annual Chamberfest in Playa Vista.

It was a fun event featuring free food, wine tasting, contests, a raffle with local valuable business prizes.

It tried to uncharacteristically rain - literally - on our parade but we soldiered on! Thanks to the LAX Area Chamber, Kevin Ging and Playa Vista for a well-run, jam-packed event.

Recipe of The Month

Ingredients

1 bunch (6 large) scallions, trimmed and thinly sliced

2 (16-ounce) bags coleslaw mix or 1 (16-ounce) bag each of shredded green and

shredded red cabbage

1 small red onion, thinly sliced

Small can bamboo shoots (drained)

Small can Mandarin oranges (drained)

1 Granny Smith apple

Dressing

1/4 cup soy sauce

1/4 cup lemon juice

1/4 cup vegetable oil

- 2 tablespoons grated fresh ginger (from about a 1-inch piece)
- 2 tablespoons white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons Asian sesame oil
- 2 teaspoons sesame seeds, optional
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 20 grinds black pepper

Method

Rough up the scallion slices a little with your fingers so all the little layers of the scallion whites separate. Toss the coleslaw mix or both kinds of cabbage, the red onion, other ingredients and scallions together in a large bowl until everything is thoroughly mixed. You can make the slaw up to this point up to a day in advance as long as you keep it refrigerated. Before serving, simply bring the slaw back to room temperature, make the dressing and toss.

Stir the remaining ingredients together in a small bowl until blended, then pour over the vegetables. Serve within 1 hour of dressing or the cabbage will get wilty and sad.

Tech Tip of The Month

Are we finally getting off oil?

The Compressed Air Car, developed by Motor Development International (MDI) Founder, Guy Negre, might be the best thing to have happened to the motor engine in years.

The $12,700 CityCAT, one of the planned Air Car models, can hit 68 mph and has a range of 125 miles. It will take only a few minutes for the CityCAT to refuel at gas stations equipped with custom air compressor units.

MDI says it should cost only around $2 to fill the car up with 340 liters of air!The Air Car will be starting production relatively soon, thanks to India's TATA Motors. Forget corn!

There's fuel, there's renewable fuel, and then there's user-renewable fuel!

What can be better than air?

NEWS RELEASE: 2008-081 May 25, 2008 NASA'S Phoenix Spacecraft Lands at Martian Arctic Site

PASADENA, Calif. -- NASA's Phoenix spacecraft landed in the northern polar region of Mars today to begin three months of examining a site chosen for its likelihood of having frozen water within reach of the lander's robotic arm. Radio signals received at 4:53:44 p.m. Pacific Time (7:53:44 p.m. Eastern Time) confirmed the Phoenix Mars Lander had survived its difficult final descent and touchdown 15 minutes earlier.

The signals took that long to travel from Mars to Earth at the speed of light. Mission team members at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.; Lockheed Martin Space Systems, Denver; and the University of Arizona, Tucson, cheered confirmation of the landing and eagerly awaited further information from Phoenix later tonight. Among those in the JPL control room was NASA Administrator Michael Griffin, who noted this was the first successful Mars landing without airbags since Viking 2 in 1976. "For the first time in 32 years, and only the third time in history, a JPL team has carried out a soft landing on Mars," Griffin said. "I couldn't be happier to be here to witness this incredible achievement."

During its 422-million-mile flight from Earth to Mars after launching on Aug. 4, 2007, Phoenix relied on electricity from solar panels during the spacecraft's cruise stage. The cruise stage was jettisoned seven minutes before the lander, encased in a protective shell, entered the Martian atmosphere. Batteries provide electricity until the lander's own pair of solar arrays spread open. "We've passed the hardest part and we're breathing again, but we still need to see that Phoenix has opened its solar arrays and begun generating power," said JPL's Barry Goldstein, the Phoenix project manager. If all goes well, engineers will learn the status of the solar arrays between 7 and 7:30 p.m. Pacific Time (10 and 10:30 p.m. Eastern Time) from a Phoenix transmission relayed via NASA's Mars Odyssey orbiter.

iFanz® Artist Spotlight

David Bradley

David Bradley, international country music rocker, is bringing his own authentic style to the USA by way of Nashville, Tennessee.

Recently relocated from the UK, this northern Englishman made a life for himself as an oil engineer uncovering places beyond the reaches of common imagination. Stationed for months in the forests of Siberia and on an oil rig in the middle of the Caspian Sea, David developed a deep empathy for others who also found themselves far from the comforts and familiarities of home. He found himself writing about the hopes and fears that a man must confront on his journey through life. In his early music days, David worked as lyricist while singing in a band formed with fellow engineers. They played first in the UK and then on the road wherever their jobs took them. "We'd put on concerts for the guys where we worked, entertained the troops, so to speak." The audiences grew to an estimated 20,000 strong in remote Kazakhstan, formerly of the Soviet Union, where David's music united people of many towns and villages. This experience inspired the song "Tumble Town" and with it emerged his conviction that music was where his heart truly lay.
